

FAUSTINO RIVERA IS CAPTURED BY YAVAPAI COUNTY OFFICERS

Sheriff Smith and Deputy Cook Run Down Alleged Shooter Of Wiley Woodruff.

(From Friday's Daily)

After a tireless and persistent chase which has been continued since the day of the attempted murder at Poland a week ago, Faustino Rivera has been captured by Sheriff Jim Smith and Deputy Joe Cook.

Close toward midnight, they found their quarry one and one-half miles north of Octave at the point of the mountain and yesterday morning the would-be slayer of Wiley Woodruff was placed behind the strong bars of the Yavapai county jail. Rivera was so exhausted from his long flight that he surrendered to the officers without offering violence after he saw that he had been cleverly trapped and that resistance was useless.

The chase was a very exciting one for the officers. Leaving Kirkland Valley on Monday night they traveled in a wagon to Walnut Grove, where they secured saddle horses, and then took to the hills.

ON HIS TRACK.

At a point about ten miles from the Grove at 3 o'clock next morning they came to Harper's camp, located on the top of the range of the Weaver Mountains. It was here that Rivera had been seen, and this was corroborated by Mr. Harper. He stated that the Mexican, who said he was a placer miner of Weaver, had been given food.

Rivera here asked to be put on the trail to Weaver, and he was shown the route. This trail he missed, and followed the highest peaks, finally taking the old trail that leads to Wickenburg. He missed Weaver by a few miles, and finally wound up near where he was captured.

After leaving Harper's camp, Sheriff Smith and Deputy Cook state that he was easily trailed, but his tracks were finally lost, owing to the range there being trampled by cattle. A few miles further they again cut it, and the direction of the fugitive was then determined.

RIVERA'S BLUNDER.

In missing Weaver, he made a vital mistake. It was his intention to get into that gulch, it being an old rendezvous of the Mexican, and in many instances of the past in the commission of crimes, it has served the purpose of being a harbor for that criminal element.

The country where Rivera was taken is open, and it being moonlight, the officers were permitted to make observations clearly.

After reaching the point of mountain above Octave, Rivera zig-zagged around and went to the camp of a Mexican in the town and secured food about 9:30 last night. He immediately left and returned to his shelter in the rocks.

Sheriff Smith upon entering Octave a little later, where he was in business for years, and knowing the characteristics of the Mexican, made inquiries of many of them, which were negative to what he desired to learn. This gave him a clue, and he concluded to camp right at that place.

LANDING THE QUARRY.

Cook and Smith then retraced their steps and went to the mountain to make observations. The officers moved cautiously and at times crawled on their hands and knees until they were sure of Rivera's hiding place.

Seeing a figure moving around cautiously and stealthily, and the reflection of the moon being favorable to the distinguishing of a human form, the officers advanced to the side of a big boulder.

Rivera endeavored to get away from this shelter in the rocks, when the officers pulled their guns and commanded him to throw up his hands. This he did. He was practically without shoes and informed his captors that he was tired of the chase and worn out physically.

INQUIRES ABOUT HIS VICTIM.

The first words spoken by Rivera were as to the condition of Wiley Woodruff. Being informed that he was alive and would recover, he said he was very much pleased to know it, but would give no reasons for the attempt to take his life. Immediately after making the capture, Sheriff Smith left for Congress Junction, and boarding the north bound train he reached Prescott this morning at about 9 o'clock.

A RELENTLESS CHASE.

These valiant officers were worn out by the chase, not having had a minute of sleep in forty-eight hours, and going without food for the greater portion of that time.

When once on Rivera's trail they never left it, except when the ground was cut with cattle trails. Their work is certainly of a high order in criminal annals, and they deserve the gratitude of the people for their untiring efforts to bring a vicious criminal to justice.

No additional particulars of the chase of Rivera are had other than those given yesterday in the Journal-Miner's extra. After the shooting of Woodruff, Rivera, in eluding the officers, confined his movements to the most elevated points possible. He passed down Groom creek at the highest point, and went up the Copper Basin range of mountains and followed them also at the greatest elevation. In going to Walnut Grove every prominent point that could be reached by him was his objective, and when he reached Harper's camp he was at the highest point in that locality, and only left the range when he missed the trail that goes over the Weaver range into the gulch below, where the little Mexican hamlet is situated. He endeavored to be at all times in a commanding position so that he could watch for his pursuers or see the movements of any others.

In this respect he imitated the Apache in strategy, and had a fear of going down gulches and in being ambushed. His route of escape was accordingly a trying one to him physically, and when he was captured by Sheriff Smith he was unable to proceed much farther, although he was evidently trying to make a last effort to get into the range of mountains below Octave and in the vicinity of Wickenburg. He had some provisions with him, secured from friends and sympathizers at Octave, it is believed, and from this fact he would, in a few hours, have reached that point. He endeavored to leave his quarry when he was held up by Sheriff Smith and Deputy Cook, at about half past eleven, and had not these officers been vigilant he would have succeeded, as the contour of the country at the point in which he was harbored permitted of but little observation on account of the rugged slope from which he was endeavoring to get away. Notwithstanding that he went right into the arms of the officers, and, with one of each side, he faced a brace of guns and threw up his hands immediately on being called on to do so. He seems to feel the sting of his capture, and at the county jail, while being viewed by many yesterday, he turned his head to the side of the cell he occupies to escape the scrutiny, and did not seem to care to converse with anyone.

His only fear when captured seemed to be as to the fate of his alleged victim, Woodruff, and was correspondingly happy when told of the favorable turn in Woodruff's condition. He will not give out any explanation as to the shooting.

Yesterday was the most favorable day of any in Woodruff's condition. For several days previous he had been growing gradually worse but it is now the belief of the attending physician that he will recover rapidly, this belief being contingent of course, on no unfavorable developments.

Woodruff did not seem to be elated in any way over the capture of Rivera, when he read the account in yesterday's Journal-Miner extra, saying that he would like to face Rivera in court and ask him with his own lips why he was shot. His tone was one more of compassion than hatred, and he seemed to be more wrapped up in his own future than that of the Mexican's.

MILITARY SHOOT TO BE HELD AT FT. HUACHUCA

(From Friday's Daily)

This year's tournament of shooting of the Arizona militia will take place at the military range of Fort Huachuca, advised to this effect being received yesterday by Captain Coykendall of Company E of this city. Until the receipt of this order from the adjutant general at Phoenix, the impression prevailed that Camp Brodie would again be chosen. Its location is more central than going to the line of Mexico, which will be an inconvenience for many companies in north and in central Arizona. The Camp Brodie range is said to be the best in the territory, and has lately been inspected. In addition to that it is the permanent range of the United States service, and is pronounced by all authorities on firing duties the equal of any in the whole country from the scores made in recent shoots. Three men will probably qualify for the southern event, among them Captain Coykendall, Sergeant Rodenburg and Private Hupp, with Corporal McNabb a possibility.

When the shoot closes in the south twelve men will go to Camp Perry, Ohio, where the big national shoot takes place in August.

Much regret is expressed that the militia boys have to go to a foreign country, practically, when more desirable locations are to be had, and that, too, under conditions that make better records a possibility.

MRS. DICKSON DIES.

Young Woman Succumbs to Tuberculosis and Remains Are Shipped.

(From Thursday's Daily)

Mrs. Mary E. Dickson died in this city Wednesday afternoon from tuberculosis, after an illness of some years. She came here two weeks ago in the hope that a change of climate would benefit her. A few hours before death came her husband came from Chicago and joined her. With a sister he accompanied the body to that city, where interment will take place.

She was twenty-six years old, with no other relatives than those named. The body was prepared by Maus & Shannon.

NEW OFFICERS OF THE K. OF C. ORDER

(From Friday's Daily)

Last Saturday the Knights of Columbus gathered to the number of about two hundred, members and candidates, at Flagstaff, with the object in view of conferring first, second and third degree honors. Flagstaff's hospitality, as usual, was in the ascendant, and the visitors are loud in their praise of the splendid time accorded them.

The degree work was in charge of State Deputy Robt. E. Morrison of Prescott, and the leaders of the third degree team were Hon. Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, California, J. P. Coyle of Fresno, California, Dr. J. K. McDonnell and several other noted members of the order. Services began last Sunday morning with high mass, celebrated by Father Murphy of South Carolina, and immediately thereafter there was continuous installation and work until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Members of the order were in attendance in large numbers from Globe, Bisbee, Tucson, Phoenix, Prescott, Flagstaff and other places along the line of the Santa Fe as far east as Las Vegas and west to the Pacific ocean.

At the last mentioned time the Knights boarded a special train which carried them with great rapidity to El Tovar hotel, on the brink of that wonderful, stupendous and thrilling rent in the earth's surface, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, which point was reached about 8:30 that same evening. This special trip was taken to participate in a banquet and literary exercises, the distance being about ninety-eight miles. Such a trip is practically unparalleled in society circles, travelling about 100 miles from the point where degree work was conferred to the banquet. The banquet was in every way a success, and about 150 guests were present, including many ladies, who enjoyed the evening's entertainment. Robt. E. Morrison was the toastmaster. Joseph Scott of Los Angeles was the principal speaker of the evening, and his oratory added to his well established reputation. His toast was "The Daughters of Eve," and those who heard his ringing words will long remember them, as they made a deep impression upon all his hearers. Many others responded to toasts and all were happy in their remarks.

At the close all departed fully impressed with the thought that the order of the Knights of Columbus is a strong and powerful one not only in Arizona but throughout the United States.

The next morning, Monday, was the occasion for the meeting of the state council of this order for Arizona. No meeting of any state council of the Knights of Columbus was ever held at a more noted spot in the world. While in session this body could look out of the windows of the beautiful music room of the hotel and gaze with wonder at the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, which no description either by pen or brush or adequately portrayed. The meeting was pronounced by all to be the most successful held by this body and the results were entirely satisfactory.

The new officers elected are M. E. Cassidy, Bisbee, state deputy; Jesse L. Boyce, Flagstaff, state secretary; E. J. F. Horne, Prescott, state treasurer, re-elected; A. A. Altweis, Globe, state warden; E. J. Menge, Tucson, state advocate. These officers elected Father Connolly, better known as the "Bishop of Winslow," state chaplain. Delegates to the national convention at Mobile, Alabama, next August, are Robt. E. Morrison, past state deputy, and M. E. Cassidy, state deputy; alternates, F. E. Coles of Bisbee and C. J. McElroy of Phoenix.

Many of the members of the order departed on the evening train, but a large, enthusiastic and active number, about seventy-five, remained over until the next day, when they all descended mule back the Bright Angel trail, made famous by Ralph Cameron, delegate in congress. At the Indian Gardens, some four thousand feet below the rim of the canyon, refreshments were served by Clarence Spalding and mother, formerly residents of Prescott. The foot of the trail, which debouches on the Colorado river, was reached early in the afternoon, and an hour was spent there gazing upon the multitudinous waves and rapids of the river. The water at this point is over four hundred feet in width and forty-nine in depth. Several of the men in the party found a private spot where they swam in the yellow, sandy waters, much to their satisfaction. The party was indeed joyous, and as most of the riders were from Arizona both the men and women considered the trip down and back a mere pastime.

Wednesday morning saw the departure of the remainder of the party and last evening about thirty of the Knights, with their ladies, stopped over in Prescott, and were entertained during the evening at the Robt. E. Morrison residence. Mrs. J. K. McDonnell, Miss Erin Morrison and Miss Babe Morrison doing the honors in the absence of Mrs. Morrison, who is in California on account of her health. The evening was spent in singing the songs which had made the echoes of the Grand Canyon ring during the trip down the Bright Angel trail, and the recounting by some of the guests of the thrilling occurrences of their journey through northern Arizona.

Many of the visitors will remain in Prescott today and tomorrow and visit sights of interest. They all unite in pronouncing Prescott the best built and most picturesque city in the territory.

The young lady graduates of St. Joseph's academy, who accompanied the Knights to the Grand Canyon, had a delightful time, and it is said that their trip was, if possible, more enjoyable than that of any other graduating class which has heretofore been made to the canyon.

EXAMINATION FOR LAUNDRYMEN, JULY 1

DEATH OF MRS. BELL.

Passes Away in Oklahoma After a Long Illness.

(From Friday's Daily)

J. I. Gardner is in receipt of the news of the death of Mrs. F. W. Bell at Oklahoma City, Okla., which occurred Wednesday evening, a telegram to that effect being received by him yesterday, from Hugh Bell, son of the deceased.

Mrs. Bell is the mother of Mrs. J. I. Gardner of this city, who was called to her mother's bedside about five weeks ago, and was with her at the time of death. Mrs. Bell was a frequent visitor to this city until her health failed, about five years ago, and much regret is expressed over her death she having been universally popular here. She will be interred at Liberty, Mo., home of her childhood days. She was about seventy-six years old. She had been in failing health for several years.

THE PRESCOTT DREDGE MINING CO. LAUNCHED

(From Friday's Daily)

With the incorporation of the Prescott Dredge Mining company, perfected some time ago, and crystallized yesterday, the enterprise was launched into an active career for the future. The first payment was made on the property and the initial work was started.

The ground to be developed by this new corporation is located on Lynx creek, and adjoins on the west the Spec Mining company, who are installing a dredge to work the placer beds of that belt. The Prescott corporation purchased from Ross and Forest, who have owned this location for some time, the tract covering a domain of 280 acres. It has been thoroughly prospected and the results are satisfactory.

It is the purpose of the new company to get to work at once, and to start the operation of the dredge by the middle of July.

It is probable that the entire plant will be constructed in this city, and the machine shops of the Arizona Mine Supply company will undoubtedly handle the work. Their equipment is sufficient for any character of machinery desired in dredge or other lines incidental to mining, and their force is equal to anything required in skilled work. The castings required will, however, be done by the foundry adjoining. This will be, then, the first time in Arizona that a complete mining plant will be turned out by a local concern, saving in general expense a considerable amount.

The auriferous beds of this old stream are given a great amount of interest lately, and from the tone of the mining element familiar with this feature of gold mining, successful operation means only handsome returns. It is but a question of the facilities introduced, the universal belief prevailing from miners of experience that the entire creek from its source to its mouth is bedded with the yellow metal in paying quantities. Hardly a foot of ground is open to the locator, and the old crude rocker is at work at many points along it. It is now, however, on the eve of a regeneration of its method of output, and if the ground will yield but half of what is claimed for it, the flow of the yellow dust should be abundant, it is said.

TO INSTALL THE KELLOGG SYSTEM

(From Friday's Daily)

Appreciating the fact that Prescott is growing and that the means of communication within it should be of the best and quickest obtainable, the Prescott Electric company is revolutionizing its telephone service. A force of fifteen men is employed in making an entire change of its system, these days, and when the workmen complete their efforts it is believed that entire satisfaction will follow.

One change to be introduced is that in ringing up the central office. By taking down the receiver the signal is given to the central office instantly, thereby obviating the tiresome task of the "hello" call, and in waiting for an answer. This is known as the Kellogg system.

With the new telephones there will be a new switchboard, which is of the most modern design, rendering four times as fast service as the one now in use.

The new machinery is expected to reach the city in about one month, and it will be placed in the new office of the company in the Masonic building. By the first of September the new service will begin, according to the expectation of the management.

The long distance service of the company will not be altered, as it already bears the reputation of being the best of its character in the southwest, surpassing in excellence that of Los Angeles.

At all points in the city today men are to be seen engaged in making this important change. The final shipment of necessary material reached the city yesterday and it is being placed in position as fast as it is possible to do so.

GARCIA GUILTY OF MAN- SLAUGHTER SAYS JURY

(From Thursday's Daily)

The case of the territory against Frank Garcia, charged with the killing of Jose Ruiz at Ash Fork, last December, was concluded yesterday at 12 o'clock and given to the jury. A verdict of guilty was reached at 4:30. The penalty was for manslaughter.

The case of the territory versus Garfield Farrell was dismissed owing to the failure to locate witnesses for the prosecution. This action was taken on the advice of the district attorney. He was accordingly released from custody.
